

GENERATIONALLY INCORRECT · PARTNER MEETING

YOUTUBE STRATEGY

Four Generations. One Table. Zero Filter.

How we turn one taping a week into an audience, a guest pipeline and sponsors.

YouTube is where podcasts get found now

THE PRODUCERS HAVE ALREADY AGREED TO THIS

1B+

people watch podcast content on YouTube every month

40%

of U.S. listeners say YouTube is the app they use most for podcasts. Spotify is 18%.

55%

of listeners found their next new show on YouTube

STILL OPEN: SALES · MERCHANDISING · STRATEGY

One taping becomes a week of content

LONG FORM

Full episode

Four generations, one topic, all three segments. The anchor video, about 45–60 min.

MID FORM

Segment cuts

One per segment, 8–15 min each. Each one stands alone and is easy to find in search.

SHORT FORM

6-10

Shorts

The sharpest generational clashes, under 60 seconds, vertical. These are what people discover.

BUILT BY

TIM · NINJA 360 DIGITAL MEDIA

APPROVED BY ALL THREE

Brand colors · fonts · copy · layout. Nothing ships without three sign-offs.

From raw footage to published, on a clock

1 · STORAGE

Google Drive

One shared home for every taping: raw footage, cuts, Shorts, thumbnails and final files, in the same folders every episode.

2 · PIPELINE

Every asset has a stage

Raw → Editing → Review → Approved → Scheduled → Live. Anyone can see where each piece is.

3 · APPROVAL

Editing sign-off

Gabe’s edit goes to Review. All three sign off on creative before it moves to Approved.

4 · CALENDAR

Deliverables on a clock

Each deliverable gets an owner, a due date and a time. Reminders before it’s due, an alert when it’s late.

Accountability triggers do the chasing, so no producer has to chase another.

We decide these together

Format	Template to agree on	Messaging to agree on
Full episode	Thumbnail, title card, intro and outro, lower thirds	Title format, description, call to “Be On The Show”
Segment cuts	Thumbnail, opening card, end screen	How each cut stands alone and points to the full episode
Shorts	Captions, vertical frame, end card	The hook line, and how it sends viewers to the episode

Starting proposal for titles

Topic first, brand after the pipe: “Is College Still Worth It? Gen Z vs Boomer | Generationally Incorrect”.

All three sign off before Episode 1.

Shorts bring people in. Episodes keep them.

- Hook in the first 2 seconds: the line that starts the argument.
- One generation pushing back on another in each Short. That’s the hook every time.
- Every Short links to the full episode it came from.
- Post Shorts across the week so the channel never goes quiet.

25-40%

of uploads as Shorts. In an 18,000-channel study, long-form numbers dropped once Shorts went past about 55% of uploads.

06 · GETTING PAID

Sponsors first. Ad revenue later.

WE ARE ALIGNING OURSELVES TO THE BUSINESS PLAN

NOW · SPONSORS

KC restaurant prospect list

Who we pitch first.

NOW · SPONSORS

Package & pricing

What sponsors get, and what it costs.

NOW · SYSTEM

Product, payment & accounting

Simple. Through the LLC.

LATER · YouTube pays	To qualify today	From Feb 1, 2027 (new channels)
Fan funding	500 subs + 3,000 watch hrs or 3M Shorts views	No change
Ad revenue	1,000 subs + 4,000 watch hrs or 10M Shorts views	8,000 watch hrs or 20M Shorts views

Tim builds the sponsor pieces · all three vote and approve · YouTube rules: Tubefilter (Aug 10, 2026), Metricool.

07 · THE GUEST PIPELINE

Every view is a casting call

1 · WATCH

Episode or Short

They see their generation argued for, or misrepresented.

2 · CLICK

“Be On The Show”

Pinned comment, description, end screen and website.

3 · APPLY

GI Guest Signup

The Google Form. Topics land on Erik’s topic matrix.

4 · SIT DOWN

A seat at the table

They bring their own audience back to the channel.

Community posts let the audience vote on the next topic, so the next taping is promoted before it’s shot.
